

An on-line programme introducing ecological scholarship and practice for practitioners
with Hayley Marshall and Giles Barrow
June - December 2026

We know it can be challenging to access in-person professional development for many outdoor practitioners. Our own programmes are now held live in Suffolk, UK. However, this coming summer we are opening a different kind of opportunity to learn together. We are offering six sessions, one per month, each of which will be based on our existing and emerging writings, as well as other material from the ecological field.

Sessions will include introductory presentations of core articles, facilitated group discussion and break-out opportunities for reflective exercises. Participants will receive links to materials for reading beforehand and access to recordings of each session.

Practical arrangements

Dates: 18th June 16th July 17th September
 22nd October 12th November 14th December

Times: 6:30pm - 8:30pm (UK)

Cost: We offer three options for payment depending on your own consideration. Those paying at the higher level enable us to offer a more flexible fee structure.

£275 OR £300 OR £350 for the series

Payment is for the whole programme and is required in total whether or not you attend all sessions.

For more details and to book your place contact Hayley at centrefornaturalreflection@gmail.com